Adult-Gerontology Acute Care Nurse Practitioner program provides broad preparation for advanced practice nursing care to patients with complex acute, critical, and chronic health conditions. With a strong emphasis on evidence-based practice, physiology, pathophysiology, and management of complex patient problems, the curriculum includes didactic content and individually selected clinical experiences tailored to provide broad preparation for advanced practice. Adult-Gerontology Acute Care Nurse Practitioners frequently practice in acute care, hospital-based, and other specialty clinic settings.

Students completing this program are qualified to sit for the Acute Care Nurse Practitioner certification examination from the American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC).

Our Psychiatric-Mental Health Nurse Practitioner program provides independent and interdependent decision making and has direct accountability for clinical judgments made. One of the most respected programs in advanced practice psychiatric-mental health nursing in the United States; the curriculum has a biopsychosocial orientation, addressing mental illness as a biological event, as a personal experience, and as a social and cultural phenomenon. Students can tailor their clinical practicum to work within the adult program or life span family program. Psychiatric Mental Health Nurse Practitioners are practicing in institutions of higher education, hospital settings, community mental health centers, psychiatric home-care programs, and forensic mental health programs or with community-based intensive case management teams.
